Too many managers spoil the mine.

Comes now the man who asks: "Is it hot enough for you?"

Considerable of the people's money has been spent in making an idol of Mr. E. H. Harriman.

Douglas papers are expatiating on the song of the trowel. The bricklayer's strike which recently tied up building operations in that city has come to an end.

Now when the trusted clerk goes south with his employer's wad, he is suffering from brainstorm or Harrimanitis.

A New York preacher says there are no women in hell. Oh, death, where is thy victory? Oh, grave, where is thy sting?

Pinal county is supposed to be the healthiest county in the United States. There are two physicians and one drug store in the county, which is larger than some of the eastern states.

The lower house of the New Mexico legislature has passed a bill making it a felony for any person, firm or corporation to employ Mexican labor at lesser wages than is paid Americans for the same work. There is no question as to the competence of the workers. Verily, the "native" is treated better in New Mexico than in Old Mexico.

A Phoenix paper says that the capital city has the finest soil in the country and proves it by citing the growth of a potato plant on the main street. Now, Globe doesn't pride itself on her soil, but if it was the richest in the world we doubt if a blade of grass—not alone a spud plant—could get a lease of life on Broad street.

THE "WILD CAT"

Even the "wildcat" has turned in its lair and is emboldened to present an angry front. In the recent issue of one of the newspapers that advertise shady promotions, there is the cartoon of a "wildcat" facing a number of dogs, representing the magazines that have attacked fraudulent mining practices. In this picture the "wildcat" looks decidedly belligerent, and is represented as howling that he is "the pioneer of all legitimate industry" and in the description underneath it is asserted that the tendency is to label every mining prospect a "wildcat" unless it has produced a great deal of money, or is "owned by the Guggenheims." This outburst is the result of a series of attacks on the worst forms of financial chicanery, appearing in certain magazines and written by men who lacked such experience in mining as to make their criticisms effective.

The result has been that the local papers have found it easy to retort and everyone of the ephemeral sheets that pose as financial advisers on mining stocks has been enabled to plume itself on a superior knowledge of mining operations. And so the "wildcat" has won some mistaken sympathy, the promoters of hungry prospects having claimed that every young mine is now labeled in this unkindly fashion until it has been developed into a bonanza. This is nonsense; of course, mines must have a beginning and each starts as a small hole in the ground, the possibilities of which are uncertain, but the mischief done arises from the fact that the promoters of the flood of wretched schemes that are now being advertised in the press offer uncertain prospects at the price of proved mines, and small mines at the valuation of big ones, and worthless claims as rich properties.

A "wildcat" is not an unpretentious prospect, it is a vicious fraud. Among the signs by which you may know him are these: "Mountains of ore;" "Getting richer with depth;" "Veins are coming together;" "Richer than the Calumet & Hecla, or the Homestake;" "Will pay when a mine is built;" "Has been experted by the well known Colonel Smith and Professor Bankum;" "An investment, not a speculation;" "Double your money in two weeks;" "Mining and Scientific Press."

BLOW WITH ROCK
DROVE HIM CRAZY

Pitiable Plight of Former Merchant Who Is Sent to Insane Asylum at Phoenix—Competition in Business Is Primarily Cause of Condition.

One of the most pitiful cases that ever came to the attention of the probate court of this county was that of George Claggett, who was tried for insanity this morning, says the Phoenix Gazette.

Claggett and his wife came here recently from Towpork, a little place near Needles. At times Claggett has a kind of spasm and goes wild with a pain in his head. Last night he had a spell and made wild threats against his wife's person, it is said. He rushed out of the house in his night clothes and asked a passerby to go out and buy him a ticket back to Towpork.

At the trial it was brought out that Claggett was struck on the head some time during his early life in the territory, and ever since he has been troubled in this way. About seven years ago he fell on the street in Phoenix and was sent to the county farm for a few days, but the attending physician declared there was nothing wrong with him and let him go.

Claggett and his wife settled in Towpork, running a little store, but he had some trouble with another man who wanted to get the exclusive trade in the grocery line at that place. Claggett refused to leave, and one night a stone came sailing through the window and knocked him senseless. Since that time the trouble with his head has been getting worse. They sold out and came down here about a week ago.

They were stopping at a house in the southern part of town owned by an old lady known as "Granny" Davenport. She told of how Claggett had threatened to cut his throat with a razor a few days ago.

The house is right between the two railroad tracks and it is believed that the noise there was one reason why his head troubled him so much. It was decided to send him to the Arizona sanitarium for a few days to see how things turned out.

HIS WOOLING

In rose-wreathed bowers I spoke in burning verse
To win her smiles,
I sung to her beneath a silver sail,
Mid moonlit isles.

Under her open lattice oft I touched
The light guitar,
When, throbbing like the heart of night,
Arose
The evening star.

I laid the fairest blossoms at her feet,
In vain, alas!
I gave her jewels worthy of a queen;
She sent them back.

She met my minstrelsy with jests and gibes,
She heard my vows
With cold indifference or the stern reproof
Of frowning brows.

But when, behold! I bought an auto car.
A scarlet beauty gay,
With burnished brass and cushions soft
And bright,
She named the wedding day.

Many a fellow is contented because
He is too lazy to make a kick.

Almost any poet could write magazine articles on how to live on $10 a week.

The living the world owes a man
Costs more to collect than its worth.

"Handsome is as handsome does" is a comforting motto for the fellow who isn't.

The average woman's idea of charity is to knit bedroom slippers for the Hot-tentots.
